Emily Young, RBC Olympian

In 2009, Emily was injured in her original sport of wrestling and had to transition away from contact sports. Shortly after, amongst surgeries, she found passion in triathlon and competing in Ironman distances races. With the progression of her injury she found her way to Paratriathlon and then was introduced to Paranordic. In 2014, she had her first day on snow with cross country skis on her feet. It was a fast road and many hours later she has progressed to racing with the Canadian Paranordic/Biathlon world cup team and travels to compete on the world cup circuit. In her ski career she has been to two World Championships, 6 World Cups and a USA National Championship. She is an athlete to the core, however, she has a Kinesiology diploma and soon a Bachelors of Psychology (sports psych specialization) under her belt in the upcoming year.
