Gilmore Junio, RBC Olympian

Gilmore Junio, a self-effacing young speed skater at his first Olympic Games in 2014, did something that touched the core of our values as citizens and not just sports fans: he gave up his spot in 1000m long track speed skating to teammate Denny Morrison, who had missed qualifying in the discipline after a fall at the Canadian trials. When Morrison went on to win Silver at the 2014 Olympic Winter Games, the friends celebrated a truly beautiful moment together. Now, with his second Olympic Games in front of him, Gilmore's out to prove that nice guys can finish first. With a quick start to the 2015-16 season, including a World Cup win in the 500m in Germany, he's establishing his one-to-watch status as a legitimate podium threat in 2018.
