Caution regarding forward-looking statements

From time to time, we make written or oral forward-looking statements within the meaning of certain securities laws, including the “safe harbour” provisions of the United States Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 and any applicable Canadian securities legislation. We may make forward-looking statements in this RBC Investor Presentation, in filings with Canadian regulators or the United States (U.S.) Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), in reports to shareholders and in other communications. Forward-looking statements in this presentation include, but are not limited to, statements relating to our financial performance objectives, vision and strategic goals. The forward-looking information contained in this RBC Investor Presentation is presented for the purpose of assisting the holders of our securities and financial analysts in understanding our financial position and results of operations as at and for the periods ended on the dates presented, and our financial performance objectives, vision and strategic goals, and may not be appropriate for other purposes. Forward-looking statements are typically identified by words such as “believe”, “expect”, “foresee”, “forecast”, “anticipate”, “intend”, “estimate”, “goal”, “plan” and “project” and similar expressions of future or conditional verbs such as “will”, “may”, “should”, “could” or “would”.

By their very nature, forward-looking statements require us to make assumptions and are subject to inherent risks and uncertainties, which give rise to the possibility that our predictions, forecasts, projections, expectations or conclusions will not prove to be accurate, that our assumptions may not be correct and that our financial performance objectives, vision and strategic goals will not be achieved. We caution readers not to place undue reliance on these statements as a number of risk factors could cause our actual results to differ materially from the expectations expressed in such forward-looking statements. These factors – many of which are beyond our control and the effects of which can be difficult to predict – include: credit, market, liquidity and funding, insurance, operational, regulatory compliance, strategic, reputation, legal and regulatory environment, competitive and systemic risks and other risks discussed in the Risk management and Overview of other risks sections of our 2015 Annual Report; weak oil and gas prices; the high levels of Canadian household debt; increasing exposure to more volatile sectors; cybersecurity; anti-money laundering; the business and economic conditions in Canada, the U.S. and certain other countries in which we operate; the effects of changes in government fiscal, monetary and other policies; tax risk and transparency; and environmental risk.

We caution that the foregoing list of risk factors is not exhaustive and other factors could also adversely affect our results. When relying on our forward-looking statements to make decisions with respect to us, investors and others should carefully consider the foregoing factors and other uncertainties and potential events. Material economic assumptions underlying the forward looking-statements contained in this RBC Investor Presentation are set out in the Overview and outlook section and for each business segment under the heading Outlook and priorities in our 2015 Annual Report, Except as required by law, we do not undertake to update any forward-looking statement, whether written or oral, that may be made from time to time by us or on our behalf.

Additional information about these and other factors can be found in the Risk management and the Overview of other risks sections in our 2015 Annual Report.

Economic Backdrop
Canada’s strong fiscal position

- Strong rating as a result of fiscal prudence, conservative bank lending practices and solid economy
- Lowest net debt to GDP ratio among G7 peers
- #1 for soundness of banks for the 8th consecutive year
- A diversified economy supporting balanced economic growth
Economic fundamentals remain solid despite energy headwinds

- The dissipation of the effects of low oil prices is expected to see headline inflation drift higher and trend around the mid-point of the Bank of Canada’s 1-3% target range through 2016.

- Labour market resilience expected to persist as a strengthening in economic activity supports ongoing hiring gains with the unemployment rate expected to resume a modest downward trend through 2016.

- Headwinds emanating from the pullback of oil prices, if sustained, point to further weakness in the oil & gas sector; however, a strengthening U.S. economy and a weak Canadian currency are expected to be factors supporting a return to an above-potential rate of economic growth in 2016.

Economic Backdrop

- Canada
  - A return to positive growth in the Canadian economy in the 2\(^{nd}\) half of 2015 is expected to persist into 2016 alongside a modest rise in crude oil prices. Firm export performance emanating from a strengthening U.S. economy is expected to be accompanied by persistent growth in household spending and a smaller, although still significant, decline in energy sector investment.
  - A strengthening economy and attendant rise in inflation is expected to result in the Bank of Canada starting to reduce policy stimulus by raising the overnight rate in Q4/2016.
  - Consumer spending is expected to remain a key driver of economic growth while housing market activity, nationally, will likely continue to be supported by accommodative borrowing conditions.

- U.S.
  - Economic growth in the U.S. is expected to remain solid in 2016 led by sustained growth in the domestic side of the economy; namely, consumer spending and business investment. Less drag on economic growth from net trade in 2016 is expected as the US currency is poised to stabilize.
  - The U.S. Federal Reserve is expected to begin to raise the Fed funds rate at its December 2015 meeting as unfolding domestic developments confirm sustained progress towards achieving the Fed’s objectives of full employment and price stability.

- Euro area
  - Further improvement in the Euro zone economy is expected to be supported by a confluence of factors, namely low oil prices, past currency depreciation, improving credit conditions and less drag from fiscal consolidation.
  - Significant monetary stimulus by the European Central Bank has curbed deflationary risks.
  - A sluggish pace of structural reforms is expected to keep growth subdued in parts of the Euro zone.

The Toronto and Vancouver downtown condo markets

- Undeveloped land around Toronto / Vancouver is limited, causing shift to centralized condo housing
  - ‘Green belt’ surrounding Toronto has limited urban sprawl and increased demand for condos in the core
  - Vancouver is restricted in its ability for urban sprawl due to land constraints away from the city centre

- Canada has one of the highest per capita rates of permanent immigration in the world\(^{(1)}\)
  - 20.6% of Canada’s population is foreign born (6.8 million), highest proportion among the G8 nations\(^{(1)}\)
  - 63% of all new immigrants to Canada move to Toronto, Vancouver or Montreal\(^{(1)}\)

Canadian housing market fundamentals remain sound

- Balanced demand-supply conditions continue to prevail in half of the markets in Canada with the exceptions being some markets in British Columbia and those in and around the Greater Toronto region
- Housing affordability is at reasonable levels across Canada with pressure concentrated in a few local markets
- Steady population growth, household income gains and low interest rates are supporting balanced conditions
- A slowdown in housing market activity in oil-producing provinces (Alberta, Saskatchewan) is being offset by strength in other regions of the country (net oil consumers) with support from highly stimulative borrowing conditions
  - Despite recent declines in resale activity in Calgary and Edmonton, these markets remain in balanced territory
- Over the forecast horizon, we expect that an erosion of housing affordability on account of rising interest rates will weigh on overall housing activity, which is expected to gradually ease to lower, more sustainable levels
- Relatively stable household debt service cost ratios, with little movement towards higher risk
- Lenders maintaining strong underwriting discipline and require extensive documentation
  - Most mortgages being held on balance sheet and conservative lending policies have led to low delinquency rates

Note to users

We use a variety of financial measures to evaluate our performance. In addition to generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) prescribed measures, we use certain key performance and non-GAAP measures we believe provide useful information to investors regarding our financial condition and result of operations. Readers are cautioned that key performance measures, such as ROE and non-GAAP measures such as earnings and revenue excluding Corporate Support, earnings excluding specified items related to sale of RBC Jamaica as previously announced on January 29, 2014, and provisions related to post-employment benefits and restructuring charges in the Caribbean, release of foreign currency translation adjustment (CTA) that was previously booked in other components of equity, revenue excluding FV adjusted net interest margin and Capital Markets trading and geographic revenue excluding specified items do not have any standardized meanings prescribed by GAAP, and therefore are unlikely to be comparable to similar measures disclosed by other financial institutions.

Additional information about our ROE and non-GAAP measures can be found under the “Key performance and non-GAAP measures” section of our 2015 Annual Report.

Definitions can be found under the “Glossary” sections in our Q4/2015 Supplementary Financial Information and our 2015 Annual Report.
