

Students feel more strongly that their parents should stay out of their financial affairs, and with good reason – they acknowledge not telling their parents everything about their spending and that their credit rating may be taking a hit

My parents know roughly how much debt I have I know roughly how much debt my child has

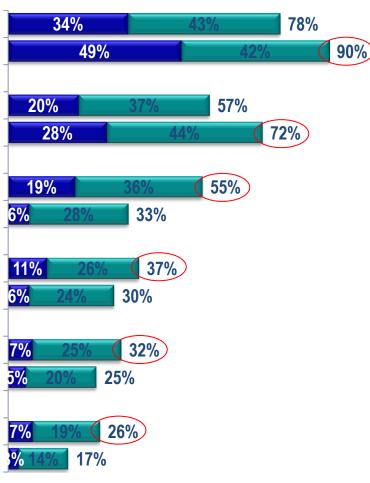

My parents know everything about my finances I know everything about my child's finances

I have sometimes hidden how I spend money from my parents so that I wouldn't have to justify my choices to them My child has sometimes hidden how he/she spends money so that he/she wouldn't have to justify his/her choices to me

I would really rather not consult with my parents on financial My child would really rather not consult with me on financial matters

> I wish my parents were not as involved in my finances I wish I was not as involved in my child's finances

> > I may be damaging my credit rating My child may be damaging his/her credit rating
