An unwavering champion of innovation, big ideas, and creativity, Dave is actively transforming RBC for the future, harnessing the power of transformational technologies like artificial intelligence to deliver digitally-enabled, client centric advice, insights and experiences. Dave is also a leading force behind RBC's 'beyond banking' strategy, building ecosystems, like RBC Ventures, that enable RBC to participate in a broader part of the client journey and value chain. In his home market, he is a passionate advocate for Canada's future prosperity and preparing youth for the future of work through the support and development of RBC Future Launch, a 10-year, $500 million commitment to help young people build the skills required to succeed in a changing world. Dave is also the Chair of RBC's Diversity Leadership Council, and is strongly committed to driving RBC's diversity and inclusion vision forward.

Dave joined RBC in 1983 as a co-op student in computer programming before moving to the organization's retail banking arm. He then held progressively senior roles in retail and business banking, group risk management, and corporate banking. He became Group Head of Canadian Banking in 2008. During his tenure leading the division, Dave helped reinvent the bank's retail operations, introducing new technology that has enabled RBC to adapt and evolve to rapidly-changing consumer demands.

Shortly after being appointed President and CEO in 2014, he led the acquisition of City National Corporation, creating a platform for growth with institutional, corporate and high net worth clients in the U.S.

Dave holds a Bachelor of Mathematics and an honorary Doctor of Mathematics degree from the University of Waterloo.
