

Regional breakdown of top tourist destinations Canadians would choose to visit, given only one choice

- More than a quarter of survey respondents would visit the Great Pyramids, with Ontarians above the national average at 29 per cent
- Quebec respondents favoured Disneyworld more than any other region at 22 per cent
- Albertans were most interested in seeing the Statue of Liberty at 7 per cent
- Atlantic Canadians (18 per cent) were the most interested in the Eiffel Tower, while British Columbians (11 per cent) would visit the Acropolis
