FOR INAUGURAL RBC CANADIAN OPEN

- Week-long Festival Celebrating Canadian Golf to be Highlighted by Significant Tournament Enhancements
- 5-Year Strategic Plan to Rebuild Canada’s National Championship Drives Early Results
- Field Shaping Up Nicely with Early Commitments from High-profile PGA TOUR Players Hoping to Derail Jim Furyk’s Bid for a Canadian 3-Peat

Oakville, Ont. (RCGA) – The Royal Canadian Golf Association (RCGA) in partnership with new title sponsor, RBC, announced today a revitalized vision for the RBC Canadian Open anchored by a long-term strategic plan and highlighted by a series of significant tournament enhancements.

The inaugural RBC Canadian Open will take place July 21-27 at the renowned Glen Abbey Golf Club in Oakville, Ont. The event will feature both onsite and offsite activities expected to bolster community interest and attract record-setting attendance.

“From the moment we announced the new title sponsor on November 1st our partners at RBC were very forthright about their challenge to us that the RBC Canadian Open must be bigger and better than before,” said Scott Simmons, CEO and Executive Director of the Royal Canadian Golf Association. “That means everything from the way we operate the event, our fan experience, our marketing and promotional efforts, the programming of auxiliary event enhancements and the inherent strength of our field.”

“Since day one we’ve been working tirelessly, challenging the RCGA and ourselves on how to immediately elevate the status and prestige of Canada’s national Open championship in year one, not just over the long haul,” said Jim Little, Chief Brand and Communications Officer, RBC. “We see the RBC Canadian Open as a national, week-long celebration of golf; a 7-10 day festival rather than the traditional four rounds of golf inside the ropes. This first year will be a strong step in the right direction.”

A New Look and Feel
The inaugural RBC Canadian Open will feature several new enhancements designed to bolster community interest and attract record-setting attendance. Strong sponsor activation programs, upgraded corporate hospitality structures, event branding and upgraded directional signage round out what is sure to feel like a refreshed event in 2008.

New enhancements for the 2008 RBC Canadian Open include:

SCORE Awards – Monday July 21
Formerly operating as a separate entity to the Canadian Open, the 28th Annual SCORE Golf Awards have been officially welcomed into tournament week of the RBC Canadian Open and will kick off tournament week on Monday, July 21st in a new ‘Gala’ format in downtown Toronto.

PENGROWTH Championship Pro-Am Draw Party – Tuesday July 22nd
Attended by corporate hospitality buyers and sponsor partners playing in the Championship Pro-Am, this evening has been elevated with special guest hosts, appearances by past Canadian Open champions and the addition of a special musical guest.
Sponsor Activation Programs – Wednesday July 23rd thru Tournament Week
RBC Canadian Open sponsors have been re-building their activation programs, both on and off-site, with a renewed focus on fan engagement and interactivity. In addition to on-site programs by Bell, Pengrowth, BMW and Molson, RBC will be announcing a major, high-profile downtown Toronto activity in support of the RBC Canadian Open that will engage golf fans in advance of tournament. Additional sponsor programming announcements will follow in the coming weeks leading up to the championship.

PENGROWTH Concert Series @ the 19th hole – Thursday, Friday & Saturday July 24th, 25th & 26th
The on-site concert series will feature some of Canada’s finest musical artists providing golf fans with an opportunity to enjoy the sounds of Blue Rodeo, 54-40 and Tom Cochrane right on the event grounds in a special open-air venue within the RBC Canadian Open’s Spectator Village. Watch for more details on the PENGROWTH Concert Series @ the 19th hole and how fans can participate at www.rbccanadianopen.ca.

Future Host Venue Announcements
The RCGA and RBC are committed to hosting the RBC Canadian Open at the finest golf courses in the country going forward. Future host city and venue announcements will be made in the coming weeks and months that will continue to address the goal of attracting stellar talent to Canada.

The driving force behind the growth of the event is a five-year plan focused on key elements aimed at returning Canada’s National Championship to the premier status it once enjoyed on the PGA TOUR. Helping RBC and the RCGA create the best possible golf tournament are Canadian PGA Tour professionals Mike Weir and Stephen Ames as well as former PGA Tour player and now Special Advisor to the RCGA Richard Zokol. The plan was recently shared with the PGA TOUR’s Executive team during the week of the PLAYERS and was met with extremely positive feedback.
