What are the key risks that are specific to the Issuer?

Business and Economic Conditions: The Issuer's financial results may be affected to varying degrees by the general business and economic conditions in the geographic regions in which the Issuer operates. These conditions may include factors such as consumer saving and spending habits as well as consumer borrowing and repayment patterns, unemployment rates, the impact of containment measures associated with the COVID-19 pandemic or other health crises on businesses' operations, the level of business investment and overall business sentiment, the level of activity and volatility of the financial markets, inflation, the level of government spending, monetary policies that are adopted by the BoC, the Federal Reserve in the U.S., the European Central Bank in the European Union and monetary authorities in other jurisdictions in which the Issuer operates, and the fiscal policies of the governments of Canada, the U.S., Europe and such other jurisdictions. Such policies can also adversely affect the Issuer's clients and counterparties in Canada, the U.S. and internationally, which may increase the risk of default by such clients and counterparties. For example, economic downturns may result in higher unemployment rates and lower household incomes, lower corporate earnings, changes in business investment and consumer spending, and could adversely affect the Issuer's business, including but not limited to the demand for its loan and other products and result in lower earnings, including higher credit losses. The Issuer's financial results are also sensitive to changes in interest rates and to weaker investor confidence and market conditions, which may lead to lower client activity and unfavourable changes in earnings. Additional risks are emerging around how countries will seek to recoup the unprecedented levels of stimulus measures introduced in response to the COVID-19 pandemic and balance budgets in the future, and around the potential implications that a prolonged low interest rate environment will have, for example, on increasing wealth inequality and extended retirement ages, among others.

Information Technology and Cyber Risks: Information technology (IT) and cyber risks remain top risks, not only for the financial services sector, but for other industries worldwide. Cybersecurity is the risk to the business associated with cyber-attacks initiated to disrupt or disable the Issuer's operations or to expose or damage data. The Issuer continues to be subject to heightened risks in the form of cyberattacks, data breaches, cyber extortion and similar compromises, due to: (i) the size, scale, and global nature of the Issuer's operations; (ii) the Issuer's heavy reliance on the internet to conduct day-to-day business activities; (iii) the Issuer's intricate technological infrastructure; and (iv) the Issuer's use of third-party service providers. Additionally, clients' use of personal devices can create further avenues for potential cyber-related incidents, as the Issuer has little or no control over the safety of these devices. IT and cyber risks have increased during the COVID-19 pandemic, as increased malicious activities are creating more threats for cyberattacks including COVID-19 phishing emails, malware-embedded mobile apps that purport to track infection rates, and targeting of vulnerabilities in remote access platforms as many companies continue to operate with work from home arrangements. Resulting implications could include business interruptions, service disruptions, financial loss, theft of intellectual property and confidential information, litigation, enhanced regulatory attention and penalties, as well as reputational damage. Furthermore, the adoption of emerging technologies, such as cloud computing, AI and robotics, call for continued focus and investment to manage risks effectively. Not managing this risk effectively may have an adverse effect on the Issuer's financial performance and condition.

Privacy, Data and Third Party Related Risks: The collection, use and sharing of data, as well as the management and governance of data, are increasingly important as the Issuer continues to invest in digital solutions and innovation, as well as, expanding its business activities. Data management is the risk of failing to manage information appropriately throughout its lifecycle due to inadequate processes and controls, resulting in legal or regulatory consequences, reputational damage or financial loss. In addition to the management and governance of data, its collection, use, and sharing also remain a top risk given the high value attributed to the Issuer's data. Resulting implications from failing to manage this risk could include financial loss, theft of intellectual property and confidential information, litigation, enhanced regulatory attention and penalties, as well as reputational damage. Privacy risk is the risk of improper creation or collection, use, disclosure, retention or destruction of information. Effective privacy and information management practices continue to grow in importance, as demonstrated by the continued development of complex regulations in the jurisdictions in which the Issuer operates and recent regulatory developments relating to data privacy. The Chief Privacy Office and the Chief Data Office partner with cross-functional teams to develop and implement enterprise-wide standards and practices that describe how data is used, protected, managed and governed. The Issuer's potential exposure to these risks also increases as the Issuer continues to partner with third-party service providers and adopt new technologies (e.g., cloud computing, AI and machine learning, etc.) and business models. Third-party risk is the risk of failure to effectively manage third parties which may expose the Issuer to service disruptions, regulatory action, financial loss, litigation or reputational damage. Privacy, data and third-party related risks have been heightened as the use of work from home arrangements have become common practice. As the majority of the Issuer's employees continue to work from home, it is continuously monitoring and enforcing best practices as it seeks to maintain the privacy and confidentiality of all sensitive information. The Issuer's security awareness program is required to be completed by each employee annually and includes cyber awareness training on managing risks while working remotely. Third-party providers critical to its operations are being monitored for any impact on their ability to deliver services, including vendors of its third-party providers. Failure to properly onboard and manage service providers may expose the Issuer to service disruption, financial loss and other risks that may negatively impact its financial performance and condition.

Regulatory Changes: The ongoing introduction of new or revised regulations will continue to lead to increasing focus across the organization on meeting additional regulatory requirements across the multiple jurisdictions in which the Issuer operates. See "Business segment results" on pages 26 to 48 of the 2020 MD&A incorporated by reference in the Base Prospectus for information on the Issuer's business segments and the jurisdictions in which they operate. Financial and other reforms that have come into effect or are coming into effect, across multiple jurisdictions, such as Canadian anti-money laundering regulations, the interest rate benchmark reform, as well as data, privacy, consumer protection regulations, Canadian benchmark rate for qualifying insured mortgages and client focused reforms, continue to provide challenges and impact the Issuer's operations and strategies and may negatively impact its financial performance, condition and prospects.

Digital Disruption and Innovation: The COVID-19 pandemic has changed the way consumers interact with financial services providers. Demand for digital banking services has increased, and while this represents an opportunity for the Issuer to leverage its technological advantage, the need to meet the rapidly evolving needs of clients and compete with non-traditional competitors has increased the Issuer's strategic and reputational risks. Additional risks also continue to emerge as demographic trends, evolving client expectations, the increased power to analyze data and the emergence of disruptors are creating competitive pressures across a number of sectors. Moreover, established technology companies, newer competitors, and regulatory changes continue to foster new business models that could challenge traditional banks and financial products. Finally, while the adoption of new technologies, such as AI and machine learning, presents opportunities for the Issuer, it could result in new and complex strategic, reputational, operational, regulatory and compliance risks that would need to be managed effectively and, if not, may adversely impact its financial performance and condition.
